told to study:

All beings with three principles control passion and dilligence

From control springs
direction

Passion springs feeling

Dilligence springs
persistence

But these three virtues are no more important than the other five

Control combines with passion to give balance

Passion with dilligence to yield achievement

Dilligence joins with control = persision

Absence of control and passion is chaos

Thus the absense of the principles points toward the 7th virtue = order

The three principles unified perform singularity

which is the 8th virtue and also the first

A circle has no end
continues forever
